

Class Dojo Translate

When your account language is different from your child's teacher's language, you can translate messages and story posts from the teacher on both the web and your app.

To ensure you have this option, make sure your account is set to the correct language. You can learn how to change your language settings here:

From the Web

Here's how to change your account's language using the ClassDojo website:

- 1 Click on your name in the upper right corner of the screen when you are logged into your parent account and select "Account Settings."

- 2 Under "Language preference," select your desired languages. "Language preference" controls the ClassDojo application itself and has a limited set of options. "Translation language preference" sets one of 132 languages as the default for the "see translation" button in story posts and messages. This also sets your default language for the content you send; we will no longer detect the language of a message but rather use this setting. If you do not select a translation language, it will default to English and teachers may not have the option to translate message you send in another language.

- 3 Click the blue "Save changes" button

iOS

If you're using the iPhone app, you can now set a different language for each of the following:

- App - sets the language for the iOS app itself, configured in your iPhone settings
- Content - sets one of 132 languages as the default for the "see translation" button in story posts and messages. This also sets your default language for the content you send; we will no longer detect the language of a message but rather use this setting.
- Communications - sets the language for push and email notifications sent to you outside the app

Here's how to adjust your language settings:

1. Tap on your profile icon in the upper left corner of the screen and tap the gear icon beside your account

2. Tap on the language setting you'd like to change. Selecting "App language" will direct you out of the app into your iPhone Settings

3. Tap on the language you'd like to set. You'll see a check mark to the right of the row. Click the back arrow in the upper left corner to return to the "Account settings" menu

Android

If you're using the Android app, you can now set a different language for each of the following:

- App Language - sets the language for the Android app itself, configured in your phone's settings
- Translation Language - sets one of 132 languages as the default for the "see translation" button in story posts and messages. This also sets your default language for the content you send; we will no longer detect the language of a message but rather use this setting.
- Communications - sets the language for push and email notifications sent to you outside the app

Here's how to set your language settings:

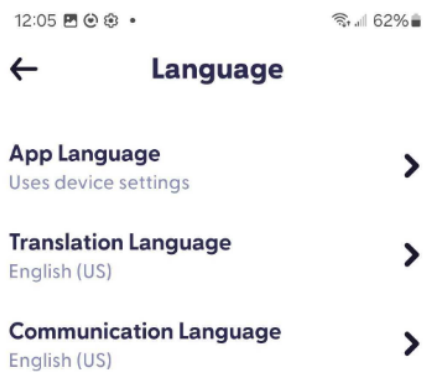

- 1 Tap on your profile icon in the upper left corner of the screen and tap the gear icon beside your account

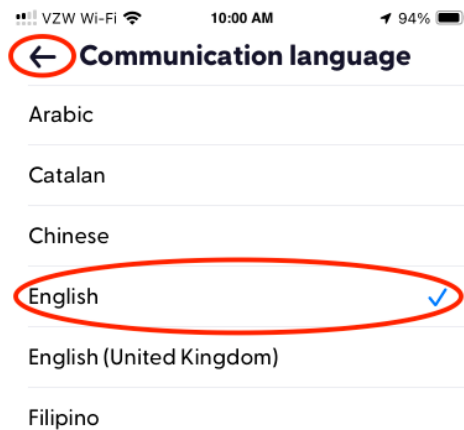

2 Select "Language"

- 3 Tap on the language setting you'd like to change. Selecting "App language" will direct you out of the app into your Android Settings

- 4 You'll see a check mark to the right of the row. Click the back arrow in the upper left corner to return to the "Account settings" menu

As you browse through your story or message feed, simply click 'See translation' below a photo caption or message to view the translation in your account's language.
