Monarchy	A system of government where a single ruler, such as a king or queen, holds power. Monarchies have played a significant role in shaping societies, influencing laws, culture and traditions. Over time, different forms of monarchy have emerged, including absolute and constitutional monarchies.	Culture	The beliefs, customs, arts and social behaviours of a particular people or society. Culture is expressed through language, traditions, religion, clothing, art, and storytelling, shaping the identity of communities throughout history.
Religious Belief	Religious beliefs have influenced how people live, govern and interact throughout history. They shape traditions, moral codes, laws, and societal structures. Different civilisations have developed unique religious systems, which have played a central role in their cultural and political development.	Migration	The movement of people from one place to another, often driven by economic, political or environmental factors. Migration has influenced the development of civilisations, leading to cultural exchanges, conflicts and the blending of traditions.
Trade	The exchange of goods, services, and ideas between individuals and societies. Trade has driven economic growth, cultural exchange and the expansion of empires. It has allowed civilisations to access new materials, technologies and resources, shaping economies and relationships between nations throughout history.	Society	A structured community of people who share common institutions, traditions and values. Societies have evolved over time, influenced by political systems, religious beliefs and cultural practices, shaping the way people live and interact.
